Mary improving; breakfast ending at downtown site

By TALI HUNT

There is news again from Horst's Bakery, which has been in the public eye recently after Horst and his wife, Mary, were injured March 8 while crossing Main Street.

First, Mary Moehlmann, who still is in the University of Louisville Hospital recovering from a head injury, was described by her daughter-in-law, Angela Gregory, as more alert and responsive and being prepared for rehabilitation.

"Mom continues to improve every day. I get so excited to see her do any of the things they requested of her," said Belinda Fralick, the Moehlmanns' daughter in a message this morning to The Madison Courier. "She just looks up at Horst and seems like she wants to talk. She smiled at the doctors when they came in. She sometimes will nod her head yes and shake her head no. She will continue to need prayers and positive vibes for the long road ahead. Thank you everyone."

Second, Horst's Little Bakery Haus

announced on Facebook Tuesday that Friday, March 30, will be the last day it serves hot breakfast at the downtown location. The post cited a decline in sales and the unforeseen accident as the reasons behind the decision. On Feb. 12, Horst's had warned customers that declining numbers among the breakfast customers downtown was causing them to consider ending the breakfast offerings.

The downtown and hilltop locations will still offer donuts, pastries, cookies, other baked goods, and will serve biscuits and gravy at both locations, the announcement said.

"Thank you for your support through the years and your continued support," said the post. "We wouldn't be here without our valued customers!"

Mary and Horst Moehlmann were hit by a vehicle while crossing Main Street just west of Cragmont near their downtown location.

Horst Moehlmann started the Little Bakery Haus in 2004 after working 29 years at Dieken's Bakery in Madison.

Goodbye after 37 years

The Pines in Madison to close on March 31

By TALI HUNT

Mary Beth Hamilton and her brother, Mike Hall, who own The Pines Restaurant in Madison and other food operations in Seymour, have decided after 37 years to close the Madison site on March 31.

Hamilton said she plans to semi-retire. She now manages The Pines in Madison and the Kentucky Fried Chicken in Seymour. Hall manages The Pines Restaurant along with the catering business and banquet hall, all in Seymour. Hamilton said she will work only at the Kentucky Fried Chicken in Seymour.

The Pines in Madison started in the fall of 1981 and quickly became a popular local restaurant focusing on traditional American home cooking in a family environment with a large buffet offering.

"The decision to close was a hard one since we have been connected to the Madison community for so long," the Pines owners said in a news release. "We are inviting the community to dine with us during our last days. Come share the memories and friendships that have been created over our time in Madison. We will be giving away a special offer to our Seymour Pines for every customer who dines with us."

"Madison has been such a wonderful community for us to do business in. I will miss the people and the many friends I have made in the last 37 years," Hamilton said.

"It is going to be hard letting go, but we hold our heads high after being such a successful part of this community for so many years," Hall added.

"I broke the news to everyone Monday night and there wasn't a dry eye in the house," said Hamilton of her staff at The Pines in Madison. "We're a pretty close-knit group, like a little family."

The Pines Restaurant was started in 1950 by Harold and Margaret Hall in Seymour, Indiana. Throughout the years their son, Joe Hall, grew the company to various locations around the area and also became a Kentucky Fried Chicken Franchisee. Hamilton and Mike Hall continued the family tradition and have been running restaurants throughout their lives. They are the third and what looks to be the last generation of Halls in the restaurant business. Both of their children have careers in other fields, some in other parts of the country.

Hamilton said she and Hall are working with a real estate agent to sell the property, which they own, as an intact restaurant, but can make other plans if needed.

Pollinator Group sells nearly 6,000 plants

By PEGGY VLEREBOME
Special to the Courier

The Jefferson County Pollinator Group sold almost 6,000 plants to 170 customers and was still counting midday Wednesday. The plant sale, which ended Monday, included plants to attract butterflies, bees, birds and other wildlife that spread pollen. As of mid-morning Wednesday, 5,687 plants had been sold.

"Going to need lots of volunteers!" Vicki Wehner, coordinator of the Jefferson County Soil and Water Conservation District, of which the group is a committee, wrote in an email. The Pollinator Action Group was the main sponsor of the plant sale, and will use plants from it for six pollinator habitats the group is organizing at six highly visible locations. The sites have been chosen.

She will need volunteers when the plants are distributed Friday, May 3 from 4 p.m. to 7 p.m. at the fairgrounds.

The Pollinator Action Group will have its regular meeting tonight, Thursday, March 21, at 6 p.m. at Ivy Tech Community College Madison campus. If interested in volunteering to help distribute the plants or to join the group, go to the meeting tonight, or contact Wehner at 812-265-7609.

Wehner said plants were ordered by people in the Indiana counties of Jefferson, Clark, Scott, Dearborn, Ripley, Switzerland, Decatur, Jackson and Ohio, and in the Kentucky counties of Trimble and Oldham.

Development ordinance vote delayed

By TALI HUNT

The Madison City Council last night tabled the vote on the city's proposed bond ordinance for major economic development projects.

Although Mayor Damon Welch and other city officials had hoped to move the ordinance along as quickly as possible, the city's Economic Development Commission had not yet had a chance to meet to decide whether to recommend the action the council should take on the matter.

Joe Jenner, the city's attorney, explained that the commission had some scheduling conflicts and would meet Wednesday afternoon to vote.

The ordinance, if approved, will allow the city to "issue revenue bonds for the purpose of financing, reimbursing or refinancing the costs of acquisition, construction, renovation, installation and equipping of economic development facilities in order to foster diversification of economic development and creation or retention of opportunities for gainful employment in or near the City..." according to the proposed legislation.

The ordinance states that the city's economic development and redevelopment commissions have requested the city authorize and issue its economic development tax increment revenue bonds in a maximum principal amount not to exceed $8 million — a maximum principal of $4 million for Riverton, the Cotton Mill project developer, and a maximum principal that will generate $2.6 million in net proceeds for Armor Plastics.

The proposed bond ordinance comes after the Cotton Mill and Armor Plastics projects were each awarded conditional tax credits from the state's DINO program.

Riverton received $4.75 million in tax credits, which the city plans to match with $4 million in cash through this bonding process and $750,000 in city tax abatements and infrastructure projects near the development site for a hotel project.

Armor Plastics received $2.6 million in tax credits to rehabilitate the vacant industrial building at Clifty Drive and Indiana 7 for a new factory. The city plans to make the match for this project entirely with funds from the proposed bonding process.

The council is expected to vote on the ordinance at its next meeting Tuesday, April 2 at 5:30 p.m. at Madison City Hall.

The council also last night honored Robert (Bob) Pimlott as a distinguished citizen for his work and contributions to the community and the Human Relations Commission. Welch read a proclamation during the council meeting commending Pimlott for his service to the Human Relations Commission and as "a member with a vision, who has worked to enhance awareness and encourage educational opportunities for Madison residents in the areas of race, color, religion, sex, disability, familial status, national origin, sexual orientation or gender identity" and "as a counselor by profession, has provided invaluable insight and perspective when addressing sensitive interpersonal issues within the community."

Pimlott, who has served on the commission more than 20 years, is a therapist in Madison.

Indy Zoo’s young elephant dies after brief illness

Indiana

INDIANAPOLIS — A 6-year-old African elephant has died at the Indianapolis Zoo after a brief illness. The zoo announced the death of the elephant, Nyah, Tuesday. The zoo said in a Facebook post that Nyah started showing signs of abdominal discomfort Sunday and veterinarians immediately began care. The symptoms seemed typical of mild colic and she was drinking and eating, but symptoms progressed rapidly and she died Tuesday morning. The zoo said a necropsy is being conducted to understand the cause of death. It said elephants grieve and each of the elephants in the herd was with Nyah after she died to help the herd understand why she won’t be with them anymore. Nyah was born and raised at the Indianapolis Zoo.

Mild flu cases urged to avoid hospital ERs

INDIANAPOLIS — A top health official is urging people with mild flu cases not to visit hospital emergency rooms. The Marion County Public Health Department said Tuesday that Indianapolis’ hospitals are seeing an “extremely high” number of people with the flu and respiratory complaints. County health Director Virginia A. Caine is urging anyone experiencing mild flu-like symptoms to avoid visiting hospital ERs to reduce demands on emergency services. She says those with mild flu should instead first contact their primary care physician or visit an urgent care facility or community health center. Caine says that “will allow emergency departments to focus resources on treating patients who are critically ill.” Marion County’s hospitals began restricting visitors in January to curb flu-like illnesses. Other Indiana hospitals have done the same.

Cities subject to $5 rental fee caps

INDIANAPOLIS — The Indiana Supreme Court has ruled that all Indiana municipalities are subject to the state’s $5 cap on annual rental property registration fees. The (Northwest Indiana) Times reported the state’s highest court ruled Friday in a case involving Hammond, West Lafayette and Bloomington that exemptions were unconstitutional. The case stemmed from a state law that exempted Bloomington and West Lafayette because of their unique rental market as college towns. But the limit applied to Hammond, which charged higher rental registration fees per unit to partly offset the cost of conducting regular inspections to ensure properties are safe for living. West Lafayette Mayor John Dennis told the Journal and Courier that its rental inspection program will continue despite ruling, though he’s not sure how it will be funded.

Billboard on balloon release taken down

INDIANAPOLIS — A billboard urging the Indianapolis Motor Speedway to end its tradition of releasing thousands of balloons before the Indianapolis 500 has been removed. The sign unveiled this week in Indianapolis depicted someone holding a shredded balloon and read, “Balloons pollute and kill,” followed by the hashtag “StopLitteringIMS.” The sign was removed Monday. Florida resident Danielle Vosburgh, who arranged for the sign, told The Indianapolis Star that billboard owner Outlook Media told her it took down the billboard after it was deemed to be an attack ad. She said the sign was funded by donations and a Fund for Wild Nature grant. Speedway spokesman Alex Damron said track officials are consulting with stakeholders and experts “to fully understand the impact of this practice and determine its status in the years ahead.”

Motorist charged after pinning officer

CLINTON — A suspected drunken driver from Illinois is facing charges after allegedly using his truck to pin an officer against a patrol car before the officer shot and wounded him. Indiana State Police said Craig R. Boradach, 49, of Paris, Illinois, was arrested Monday on charges including battery on a law enforcement officer and operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated after being discharged from an Indianapolis hospital. State police say Patrol Officer John Alkire stopped his car with emergency lights activated Saturday when the suspect’s truck continued traveling toward him. Police say the officer, after being pinned, shot the suspect. The officer was treated and released at a hospital. He’s on paid administrative leave amid the ongoing investigation.

Crew works for hours to end landfill fire

FORT WAYNE — WANE-TV reported fire departments from across Allen County responded to a landfill fire, which started late Tuesday in Fort Wayne. No injuries were reported. Crews worked for several hours to extinguish the fire and were at the scene wrapping up early Wednesday. The cause of the fire wasn’t immediately known.

Water rates to rise by 8% in settlement

GREENWOOD — Customers of Indiana American Water would see their bills increase by nearly 8 percent by mid-2020 under a proposed settlement agreement the utility has reached with consumer advocates, industrial customers and other parties. The agreement was filed Monday with the Indiana Utility Regulatory Commission, which may accept, deny, or change it. An IURC settlement hearing is scheduled for April 11. The deal calls for a 7.9 percent increase in operating revenues based on the utility’s investment of more than $542 million in its water systems across the state. A 1.73 percent increase would occur this summer and a 6.07 percent increase in mid-2020. Residential customers using 4,000 gallons of water per month would see their bills increase by a total of $2.41. The utility has 1.3 million customers across Indiana.

Woman dies after vehicle hit by train

NEW WHITELAND — Authorities said a 20-year-old woman has died after the vehicle she was driving was struck by a freight train. The Johnson County sheriff’s office said Shauna Synesael was pronounced dead at the scene of the late Tuesday collision in New Whiteland. The sheriff’s office said she was the only person in the vehicle that was struck at a rail crossing where stop signs are posted for motorists. The train was hauling more than 80 freight cars. No other injuries were reported. The crash is under investigation.

Military academy closing after 135 years

HOWE — A private military preparatory school in northern Indiana will close after 135 years because of ongoing budget shortfalls and dwindling enrollment, officials said. Howe Military Academy President Thomas Tate made the announcement on Monday. The boarding school for grades 7 through 12 will shutter after the current school year, The Journal Gazette reported. Tate blamed “rising costs and declining enrollment for more than a decade” at the school in Howe, about 40 miles east of South Bend. “Fiscal challenges associated with a vast, but aging, campus, small class sizes, highly educated and qualified faculty and staff, and robust programming and student opportunities come at a very high cost — one that our business model is not able to support,” the announcement said. The school will help students, faculty and staff pursue alternative plans for the next school year, officials said. Academic, athletic and extracurricular programs will continue as planned for the rest of the current school year. “While this is a time of sadness as we come to the end of an era, we celebrate the success, camaraderie, and friendship that Howe has provided to so many,” Tate wrote. The planned closure of the 100-acre campus comes five years after the school survived a similar financial crisis thanks to a $2 million donation from a graduate. Howe Military Academy opened in 1884. It began admitting women in 1988 and has more than 5,000 alumni, according to the school’s website.

9-month-old baby revived in drug OD

COVINGTON — Authorities say a 9-month-old baby overdosed on drugs and had to be revived with an opioid overdose-reversal drug. News outlets cite a police report that said the baby was taken to a Covington fire department Sunday night. When police arrived, CPR was being administered and the baby was taken to a hospital and given Narcan, a brand name form of naloxone. It’s unclear what was in the baby’s system. Commonwealth’s Attorney Rob Sanders said an investigation is underway, but no one has yet been charged. The baby’s current condition is unclear.

AG lauds ‘Green Dot’ anti-violence initiative

FRANKFORT — The attorney general says his office is joining in an initiative that encourages bystanders to actively prevent violence. Attorney General Andy Beshear said Tuesday that employees in his office will take part in the training as part of the so-called “Green Dot” initiative. Its supporters say the strategy has spread to 42 states and five countries. It encourages bystanders to help prevent violence — whether it’s child abuse, elder abuse, bullying, stalking or sexual violence. It’s an effort to prevent violence in communities and the workplace. Beshear’s office says the Women’s Crisis Center of Northern Kentucky is partnering with the AG’s office to train more than 200 employees starting next month. The northern Kentucky center also helped Maysville, Kentucky, become one of the first “Green Dot” cities in the nation.

$50,000 fine in workers comp cases

FRANKFORT — A company with a long-running contract to manage workers’ compensation claims has been assessed a $50,000 penalty by the state’s Executive Branch Ethics Commission. The commission said Monday that Cannon Cochran Management Services Inc. agreed to not contest 14 counts of violating Kentucky’s executive branch ethics code. A CCMSE executive testified at the bribery trial of former Democratic lobbyist James Sullivan. The executive said the amount paid Sullivan’s consulting firm depended on whether the company won a state contract. State law bans lobbyists from being paid in this way. The commission assessed a $15,000 penalty against Sullivan, who agreed to not contest 20 counts of violating the ethics code. Sullivan was convicted in federal court of bribing a top official in the Kentucky attorney general’s office and was sentenced to more than 2 ½ years in prison.

Commissioner still wants protester names

LOUISVILLE — Kentucky’s largest school district has asked the state’s education commissioner to withdraw his request for names of teachers who used sick days to protest at the state Capitol, but the commissioner said he will not back down. News outlets report Commissioner Wayne Lewis told Jefferson County’s Board of Education on Tuesday he still wants the names but won’t punish the teachers if school remains in session. Lewis last week wouldn’t rule out disciplining teachers who used sick days to close multiple school districts so they could protest.

Driver awaits murder trial in officer’s death

LOUISVILLE — A truck driver charged with murder in the traffic death of a Louisville Metro Police officer will be monitored at home while he awaits trial. The Courier Journal reported Roger Burdette, 60, was released Monday into a home incarceration program. Police have said he crashed his Metropolitan Sewer District semitruck into Detective Deidre “Dee Dee” Mengedoh’s police car, which burst into flames on Interstate 64 in December. Police said Burdette told authorities he takes medications that cause dizziness. Prosecutors said a toxicology report indicated Burdette had an opioid in his system. He pleaded not guilty to charges including murder and driving under the influence.

First lady of Kentucky falls off back of stage

LEXINGTON — Kentucky First Lady Glenna Bevin fell off the speaker’s platform during the Governor’s Prayer Breakfast in Lexington, but she’s OK. Governor’s office spokesman Woody Maglinger told The Courier Journal that Glenna Bevin was shaken up but didn’t need any medical attention. Maglinger said her chair “just slipped off the back of the stage” on Monday morning. The newspaper said a photo of the event shows the stage to be about two feet high. Maglinger said the governor’s office has been getting questions about the fall, but it was more startling than anything else. He said the governor quickly helped the first lady before returning to finish the event, which was focused on helping children in foster care.

Judge vows rule on Medicaid work requirements by end of March

By PHIL GALEWITZ
Kaiser Health News

The federal judge who shot down a Medicaid work requirement plan last June remained deeply skeptical last week of the Trump administration’s renewed strategy to force enrollees to work.

U.S. District Judge James Boasberg, who last year blocked Kentucky’s work requirement, heard testimony on a revised federal approval. He also had a hearing on Arkansas’ Medicaid work requirement — which took effect last July and has led to 18,000 Medicaid enrollees losing coverage.

After the court hearings in Washington, Boasberg said he would rule on both states’ programs by April 1, which is when the next round of Arkansas enrollees could be kicked off the program. Kentucky plans to implement its work requirement this summer.

A ruling against a work requirement would have vast repercussions in more than a dozen other states that have been approved for new work requirements in Medicaid, the federal-state health program, or are seeking them from the Trump administration.

Throughout the two-hour-long hearings, Boasberg questioned Justice Department lawyer James Burnham on whether the work requirement plans approved by the Trump administration were helping to achieve Medicaid’s goal of promoting health coverage.

When Burnham argued that work requirements would give people incentives to find work and improve their lives, Boasberg interjected: “That is not the purpose of Medicaid.”

On Capitol Hill, Democrats grilled Health and Human Services Secretary Alex Azar about the work requirements. Azar testified before three separate committees, two in the House and one in the Senate, on the administration’s budget request for the department.

Addressing the Senate Finance Committee, Azar disputed the idea that everyone who lost

Medicaid in Arkansas was now uninsured. “Only 1,000 of those 18,000 people appealed” their loss of Medicaid, he said. “Only 1,452 of those 18,000 even reapplied for Medicaid when open enrollment came again.”

Azar said that “seems a fairly strong indication” that the rest of those cut from the program “got a job and insurance elsewhere.”

Top health officials for the Trump administration have said getting people on Medicaid into jobs will make them healthier — which they call a key goal of the program.

States can implement work requirements since Congress has given the HHS secretary permission to approve their experiments with the Medicaid program, the administration asserts.

But advocates for the poor say an experiment that leaves thousands of people without coverage runs counter to Medicaid’s aim to improve access to health care.

In his ruling last year, Boasberg, who was appointed by President Barack Obama, said Azar’s approval of Kentucky’s plan failed to consider whether the strategy would “help the state furnish medical assistance to its citizens, a central objective of Medicaid.” He said promoting health generally or helping someone get a job was not the point of the state-federal program created in 1965.

Kentucky last year became the first state to win federal approval for its proposal requiring that certain Medicaid recipients work, go to school or fulfill community service. After Boasberg’s ruling last June, the state filed a new waiver application seeking to meet the judge’s requirements, and the Trump administration approved it.

Federal officials have approved work requirement proposals in seven states — Arizona, Arkansas, Indiana, Kentucky, Michigan, New Hampshire and Wisconsin. In each of those states, the requirements would apply only to people who gained Medicaid coverage under the expansion promoted by the Affordable Care Act. Ten other states — Alabama, Kansas, Mississippi, Ohio, Oklahoma, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Utah and Virginia — also have requested approval. Some of those states have not expanded Medicaid and are seeking to add work requirements to their regular programs.

Kentucky Gov. Matt Bevin, a Republican, has threatened to scrap the Medicaid expansion unless his state is allowed to proceed with the new rules, a move that would cause the more than 400,000 new enrollees to lose their coverage. He said the work requirement will help move some adults off the program so the state has enough money to help others on the program.

Boasberg questioned whether the state has proven its case to the federal government that it needs work requirements to keep its Medicaid program financially sustainable. “At the end of the day, isn’t the centerpiece of your case the fiscal sustainability argument?” Boasberg asked the Trump administration’s lawyer.

Burnham argued neither Kentucky nor Arkansas was kicking people off their programs and causing them to lose benefits. He said people were just choosing to not comply with the state’s new reporting requirements to show they were working, doing volunteer work or meeting one of the states’ exceptions.

Did your Doctor ‘Ghost’ You? An employment contract may be to blame

By MICHELLE ANDREWS
Kaiser Health News

When Don Cue developed a bladder infection last fall, he called his longtime urologist’s office for a urine culture and antibiotics. It was a familiar routine for the two-time prostate cancer survivor; infections were not uncommon since he began using a catheter that connects to his bladder through an incision in his abdomen.

When Cue called this time, a receptionist told him that his physician, Dr. Mark Kellerman, no longer worked at the Iowa Clinic in Des Moines, a large multi-specialty group. She refused to divulge where he’d gone.

“As a patient, ‘scared’ is too strong a word, but my feeling is, ‘What do I do now?’” said Cue, 58.

Flummoxed, he solved his immediate problem by taking leftover antibiotics he had in his medicine cabinet.

It was only later that he learned his doctor had been fired by the Iowa Clinic and planned to start a urology practice with clinic colleagues. And, under the terms of their contract with their former employer, the doctors were banned for a year from practicing within 35 miles of the clinic and from recruiting former patients to follow them.

Contracts with so-called restrictive covenants are now common in medicine, although some states limit their use. Noncompete clauses — common in many commercial sectors — aim to stop physicians or other health care professionals from taking patients with them if they move to a competing practice nearby or start their own. But what may be good for business is bad for patient care — and certainly disquieting for those whose doctors simply disappear.

One survey of nearly 2,000 primary care physicians in five states found that roughly 45 percent were bound by such clauses.

Continuity of care is important, doctors say, especially for patients with ongoing medical issues. Cutting off access to a doctor is different from disrupting someone’s relationship with a favorite hairstylist or money manager, they say.

“When doctors want to move from one practice to another, if they’ve got good therapeutic relationships with their patients, you’d think that public policy would want them to continue to treat these patients that trust them,” said Judy Conti, government affairs director at the National Employment Law Project.

Charlie Wittmack, a lawyer at Hartung Schroeder in Des Moines, is representing Kellerman and the two other urologists who were also fired in a lawsuit against the Iowa Clinic. The wrongful termination suit asks the court to declare the physicians’ restrictive covenant provisions unenforceable. Wittmack said the controversy there was “tragic” for patients. “These are people who have prostate cancer or are in extreme pain because of kidney stones or have blood in their urine.”

Ed Brown, the clinic’s CEO, said the noncompete agreements are not just about business but also help ensure that the Iowa Clinic can provide reliable services.

“Noncompetes are good for the patients because they help to provide stability within a practice and ensure continuity of care,” Brown said recently in an email. Further, he added, noncompetes protect physicians by ensuring that other physicians in the practice are committed to the same agreement and can’t abandon it without proper notice.

The urologists “believe they can make more money elsewhere, and they don’t want to be held to any contractual responsibilities,” he said.

Even when longtime patients go sleuthing to find their doctors’ new offices, they may not be accepted into those practices. Hospitals and clinics say they have little choice but to respect the terms of business agreements that others have negotiated.

UW Health, the health care system for the University of Wisconsin-Madison, recently hired three primary care doctors who had worked across town, said Dr. Sandra Kamnetz, vice chairwoman of clinical care for the Department of Family Medicine and Community Health at the University of Wisconsin’s School of Medicine and Public Health. They are taking great pains not to treat any of the new doctors’ former patients because the terms of the doctors’ contracts with their old employer prohibit them from taking care of former patients for two years.

Staff at the UW clinics ask prospective patients if they’ve ever been seen by one of the doctors. They then check the patient’s electronic health record to confirm there are no messages, prescription refills or other recent contact with the new UW Health doctors and that patient at the previous job, said Kamnetz.

“Patients get frustrated, but what they may not understand is that this is a legal thing that we have to abide by,” she said.

Whether noncompete clauses are binding in health care — especially when patient care is disrupted — is a point legal scholars debate. In general, to be enforceable, the agreements must be reasonable and narrowly drawn so that they protect an employer’s legitimate business interest but don’t unduly restrict a doctor’s ability to make a living.

Courts may weigh whether enforcing a noncompete clause would create a physician shortage in a particular region or specialty. The guiding principle is patient choice, said David J. Clark, a partner in the New York office of the law firm Epstein Becker Green who has analyzed state noncompete statutes in health care.

“No court is going to deny a patient who wants to go see a doctor of her choice,” Clark said.

Most disputes are settled before they make it to court, however.

A recent report by the Trump administration evaluating how to promote choice and competition in health care recommended that states examine noncompete agreements for their effect on patients’ access to care and the supply of providers. Several states, including Massachusetts and Colorado, that allow noncompete clauses in employment contracts generally won’t enforce them against doctors, according to Clark’s analysis.

Other states, such as Texas and Tennessee, place limits on the agreements. In Texas, for example, a noncompete pact must allow doctors to have access to a list of their patients in the past year and access to their medical records, among other things, Clark found.

Medical board rules take it a step further. “In Texas, when a physician leaves, the practice is required to cooperate with a physician who wants to put up a notice that says this is where that physician can now be contacted,” said Kathy Poppitt, a partner in the health care and government and internal investigations practices at the Austin, Texas, office of King & Spalding.

The American Medical Association, which represents doctors, doesn’t oppose restrictive covenants outright, although its policy notes they can limit said Kentucky’s financial sustainability argument “seems absurd” because the federal government this year is paying 94 percent of the costs for the Medicaid expansion population.

He said HHS should not be approving Kentucky’s waiver based on the governor threatening to kill the entire Medicaid expansion if he doesn’t get work requirement authority.

Gershengorn said Azar cannot argue in approving Kentucky’s waiver that he has no idea how many people would lose coverage since the Arkansas experience already shows thousands lost Medicaid coverage.

The Kaiser Family Foundation has estimated that 1.4 million to 4 million Americans could lose their coverage if work requirements were imposed nationwide. Most of the coverage losses would result from enrollees failing to report their compliance to the state, not because they were failing to fulfill the work or job search criteria. (Kaiser Health News is an editorially independent program of the foundation.)

The Justice Department attorney tried to show the difference between the first Kentucky approval in January 2018 and the second one made last November was that the HHS secretary analyzed what effect the experiment would have on health coverage. He said keeping the Kentucky program would ensure the expansion stayed in place as well as give adult enrollees access to vision and dental coverage.

But Gershengorn argued the difference between the two approvals is that the state and the federal government now know the implications work requirements can have on enrollees.

“There is massive harm,” Gershengorn said. “It is not speculative.”

patients’ choices. “To the extent that these agreements disrupt continuity of care and disrupt patient choice, this is of great concern to the AMA,” said Dr. Patrice Harris, the organization’s president-elect.

For patients in central Iowa, the departures of longtime urologists at the Iowa Clinic is dizzying. After Kellerman and his colleagues left, five of the clinic’s remaining seven urologists submitted their resignations. They are also subject to noncompete restrictions. They left the practice in mid-February.

Brown, the clinic CEO, said the urology department has replaced four of the eight urologists and has nine nurse practitioners or physician assistants to treat patients. The clinic is continuing to recruit physicians and advanced practice providers like nurse practitioners.

Susan Murphy, 72, has seen a number of doctors in the urology department. Dr. Richard Glowacki, one of the urologists who left with Kellerman, performed surgery to remove her kidney stones more than a decade ago. Another, Dr. Stephanie Pothoven, did surgery to repair her prolapsed uterus a few years ago.

Murphy said she got a letter from Pothoven announcing her departure. It didn’t provide details about where she would be going.

“I’ve got it etched in my brain to find out where they went,” she said. She has no plans to return to the Iowa Clinic. “Somehow they lost sight of patient care and were more concerned about the bottom line,” she said.

The annual Leadership Day that Rykers’ Ridge held included a breakfast and a student-led Morning Ceremony. (Courier staff photos by Tali Hunt/thunt@madisoncourier.com)

Based on Stephen Covey’s “The Seven Habits of Highly Effective People,” the students of Rykers’ Ridge learned various leadership roles to develop their strengths and build their confidence throughout Leadership Day.

From the student’s perspective

This article was written by Adysen Armand, Addison Boltz, Haley Ferguson, Lily Girton and Maci Ward.

At Rykers’ Ridge Elementary, students take the reigns. From organizing and running the Morning Ceremony to tracking their own data, students demonstrate accountability and leadership. This helps students to grow their interpersonal skills and sense of responsibility. The Leader in Me is a learning model based on Stephen Covey’s “The Seven Habits of Highly Effective People.” The Leader in Me is a kid-friendly version. Leadership roles let students develop their strengths and build their confidence. Rykers’ Ridge student, Garrett Klein said, “Our leadership roles give us confidence and help with manners and people skills, like eye contact.” One leadership role is called, “Rolling Returns.” This job is important because the students collect, check-in, and shelve the books in the library. This helps students to know that properly putting the books back matters to everyone and it takes a lot of work. Each student has a data binder where they track W.I.G.S. (wildly important goals.) Every Friday, students graph progress toward their individual goals. In order to set these goals, students learn to make SMART Goals by using the “X to Y by When” format. The X stands for the starting score. The Y represents the goal to be achieved. When means the time period that the goal should be achieved. Kids write strategies to help achieve the goals and they also have accountability partners to discuss challenges and accomplishments. Good habits make good leaders. Making kids responsible and accountable keeps kids on the right track. Setting goals and showing empathy makes school a great place to be.

7 inducted into Shawe’s National Honor Society

Seven students from Shawe Memorial Jr./Sr. High School were inducted into the Father Michael Shawe Chapter of the National Honor Society in a ceremony at Shawe Memorial on March 15. Members for this chapter were selected by the chapter’s Faculty Council and were chosen for meeting high standards of scholarship, service, leadership and character. The inducted students were Trey Suggett, Phoebe Grote, Walter Stanley, Matthew Binzer, Johanna Leatherman, Abigail Hill and Emma Belt. The Father Michael Shawe Chapter has been active since 1959 and the chapter sponsors several service projects every year for the school and community. Over the last few years, these projects have included canned food drives and visiting area nursing homes. The National Honor Society ranks as one of the oldest and most prestigious national organizations for high school students. Chapters exist in more than 15,000 high schools, and, since 1921, millions of students have been selected for membership.

FREDRICA

Fredrica is a smart and outgoing girl. She is an Australian Shepherd mix. Fredrica walks well on leash and is looking forward to learning new things. She listens well and tries to do what is asked of her. Fredrica likes other dogs, but she gets jealous when they are out of their kennel and she is not. She will bark in protest if another dog goes by her kennel door. Ask the shelter staff to test how Fredrica reacts to cats. She may be a bit too interested in them to have cats in her new home. Feathered livestock may be a no for her too. Fredrica is 2- to 3-years-old, weighs 40 lbs. and has a distinctive, tricolor, merle coat. Her adoption fee is $30 plus the cost of her spay and rabies vaccination.

PETS OF THE WEEK

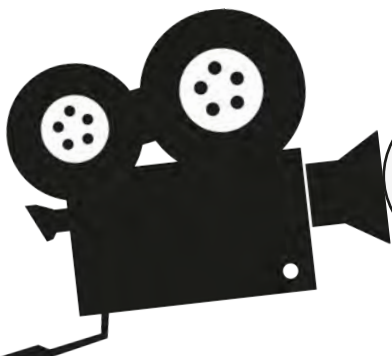

The Madison-Jefferson County Animal Shelter currently has 7 dogs or puppies, and 10 cats or kittens available. Pictures of additional pets waiting for adoption can be viewed at www.sisaveapet.com. Normal shelter hours are Monday, Thursday and Friday from noon to 5 p.m., Wednesday from 1 p.m. to 7 p.m., Saturday from noon to 4 p.m., and Sunday from noon to 3 p.m. It is closed Tuesday. The shelter number is (812) 273-1788 and the email is jcas39@seidata.com. All cats and kittens are $45 off unless they are already spay or neutered. Discount is courtesy of the Animal Shelter and the Jefferson County Humane Society. Volunteers are always welcome at the shelter. Individuals must be at least 16 years old to volunteer. Volunteers can help with everyday cleaning, answering phones, and exercising the pets. Contact the shelter for details. The shelter is a registered organization with the Kroger Community Rewards program. To support the shelter, register a Kroger card at www.krogercommunityrewards.com and enter FL919. Support the shelter while walking your dog. Use the “Walk for a Dog” or “Woof-Trax” app available through the App Store or Google Play. For each mile walked, a donation is made to the shelter. A list of needed items can be found on the shelter website. Donations can be mailed to 2727 Hannah Drive, Madison, IN 47250 or dropped off during shelter hours. The shelter also accepts aluminum and steel cans, which are recycled and the proceeds put toward the medical fund. Recent donations have helped get treatment for a beagle with a skin infection and a cat with wounds. The shelter asks that aluminum and steel donations be separated. Steel cans should also be rinsed before they are dropped off. Cans can be dropped off at anytime in a bin located on the east side of the shelter. Those with missing pets can stop by the shelter, call or email a complete description of the pet, when and where it was last seen, the owner’s name and contact information, and a picture of the pet. Pets are held for three days before they are made available for adoption. Animals should not be abandoned outside of the shelter or dropped off at the shelter after hours. For animal control issues in Madison, call (812) 265-3347. For animal control issues in Hanover and Jefferson County, call (812) 265-2648.

ANDRE

Andre is a cool cat with a mellow and relaxed attitude. Not much bothers him. Andre loves to be lazy and will be found relaxing in his cage. Picture Andre laying on a sofa, in a sunny window, or even snuggling in someone’s lap. Andrea will require a covered litter box since he likes to potty as close to the edge as possible. He is a 5- to 7-year-old male with brown Tabby fur. Andre had a gastrointestinal problem when he came to the shelter. That has been solved with a prescription diet, Royal Canin Gastrointestinal. Please keep Andre on this food or something similar. Andre is neutered, up-to-date on vaccinations, and $45 to adopt.

Could gift cards be a subtle hint?

Dear Annie: I read your response to “Loving Mother,” whose children bought her gift cards to clothing stores rather than generic, credit card-type gift cards. Though I agree that honesty is the best policy, perhaps her children were actually trying to give her a subtle hint that she needs new clothing. My mother started to lose weight as she got older but insisted that her clothing was still adequate, even though it was hanging off of her. Not to mention the fact that after many years, clothing simply wears out. Perhaps her children were just trying to be kind and not point out that her attire is old or worn. After reading so many other letters you receive from parents who are ignored, I hope “Loving Mother” takes the opportunity to open a real conversation with her children. — Loving Daughter

Dear Loving Daughter: Thank you for sharing your story with us and promoting open and honest conversations with family members.

Dear Annie: In response to “Dad of a Dieting Doggo,” I’d like to share some thoughts about an overweight dog’s beginning an exercise program.

Just like an out-of-shape human, a dog needs to build up endurance for any type of exercise. The dog may wear out quickly and need a rest. The owner may want to consider doing shorter walks more often, increasing the distance and/or time gradually. In a dog’s world, slow is fast. Building up a dog’s heart and muscles takes time, just as it does with humans.

The owner may also talk to the vet to make sure the dog is on the best food. There are some prescription diets that can help dogs lose weight more aggressively. Additionally, cutting down on the food given per meal and adding low-sodium green beans or other healthful vegetables for a dog can help dogs sense fullness with a lot fewer calories. Finally, the serving size on the dog food’s label is a recommendation, not a requirement. A dog may not need as much food as the bag recommends. The owner needs to learn more about the dog as they are together and play around with portion size to figure out what would be best long term when the dog gets to an ideal weight.

It can be done, but the owner needs to expect gradual weight loss, as that is way healthier than having a dog drop weight quickly.

Love reading your advice!

— An Experienced Dog Lover
Dear Annie: I read the letter from “Dad of a Dieting Doggo” and would like to share my experience. I thought my rescue dog was lazy because she lagged behind on walks and had no energy. A friend suggested thyroid testing. It turns out that my dog had such an underactive thyroid that it barely registered on the test. After a few days on the thyroid medication, she had plenty of energy and was enjoying her walks. The dad of the overweight dog might consider having his pup tested. — Concerned Dog Lover

Dear Dog Lovers: Thank you both for these great letters regarding the sweet overweight dog.

From the Family of Donna Jean
(Sutter) Hunger

We would like to thank everyone who supported us in the loss of our loved one. Special thanks to Trevor Lytle and the caring associates of Lytle Welty Funeral Home. Father Christopher Craig for the lovely and caring service. We would also like to thank the Jennings County Hospice for their assistance in making Mom feel comfortable in her last days and in the past year. Thanks goes out to the Scott County Home Helpers for their wonderful care of our Mom, especially Patsy Snell. If it was not for you, I’m not sure we would have made it as long as we did. Mom never met a stranger, she loved everyone. I hope we all gave her what and how she wanted her last days to be. I pray she is at peace and she is resting wonderfully in Heaven above. Peace be to all!

Thank you,

Her daughters, Tina and Lesley, her son Eddie, her Fiancé Wayne, his children and grandchildren. Her grandchildren, and great grandchildren. Her Sisters, Barbara, Margaret, Verna, and Faye, her nieces, nephews, and all her family members.

OBITUARIES
Jerry Conway

Jerry Richard Conway, 82, of Madison died Tuesday, March 19, 2019, at his home.

He was born April 11, 1936, in Decatur, Illinois, to Lyle and Christine Tarter Conway. He was raised in North Pekin, Illinois, and was a 1954 graduate of Pekin Community High School. He was inducted into the U.S. Air Force Nov. 6, 1954, in Chicago. He rose to the rank of Airman First Class while serving during the Korean Era and was honorably discharged Sept. 24, 1958, at March Air Force Base in California. While serving he spent two years in Japan as a Korean linguist after being trained at Yale for nine months. After being honorably discharged he worked for Magnavox Company in Urbana, Illinois. He moved to Madison in 1971 and worked for Grote Industries, then Hecks and eventually retired from Mr. Hardware. He enjoyed his classical guitar, family genealogy research, reading, woodworking, carving, UK basketball, playing Scrabble and doing yard work. He had been attending the North Madison Baptist Church.

He is survived by his wife, Marilyn Akers Sigler Conway of Madison; two sons, Bruce Conway of Sacramento, California, and James Conway of Madison; one stepdaughter, Tara Sigler Scholey of Bedford, Kentucky; three sisters, Nancy Heitzman and Marilyn Hartsock, both of Pekin, Illinois, and Mary Helen Popejoy of Germantown Hills, Illinois; two brothers, Bernard “Bud” Conway of Whitwell, Tennessee, and Stephen Conway of Meridian, Idaho; four grandchildren; two great-grandchildren; and several nieces, nephews and other relatives.

He was preceded in death by his parents and two brothers, Everett and David Conway.

Funeral services will be at 11 a.m. Friday at Morgan & Nay Funeral Centre. Burial will follow in Indiana Veterans Memorial Cemetery.

Visitation will be at the funeral home Thursday from 5 p.m. until 7 p.m. and Friday from 9 a.m. until the service.

There will be a final salute at the funeral home Friday at 11:30 a.m. with full military honors to follow at the cemetery chapel to be conducted by Major Samuel Woodfill Post No. 9 of the American Legion and the United States Air Force Ceremonial Unit.

Expressions of sympathy may take the form of donations to the Salvation Army or Disabled American Veterans. Cards are available at the funeral homes.

Online condolences can be sent at morgan-nay.com

Bart Law

Bart Law, 52, of Madison, Indiana, died Monday, March 11, at his home.

He was born June 21, 1966, in Madison, Indiana, to Phyllis Stucker Carter.

He lived his life in Madison. He was employed by the Richwood Plantation in Milton, Kentucky, and for many years was a painter throughout the area.

He is survived by a daughter, Chelsea Law, and a son, Matthew Law, both of Madison; two sisters, Autumn Hoover of Commiskey, Indiana, and Twilia Thompson, of Madison; three brothers, Delbert Taylor of Deputy, Indiana, and Donnie Law and Mark Burkhead, both of Hanover, Indiana; a grandson, Luke Harper; and several nieces, nephews and great nieces and nephews.

He was preceded in death by his mother, Phyllis Stucker Carter, and a brother, Ricky Taylor.

He requested his body be donated to science through Indiana University, so there will be no services at this time. The family plans a memorial service at a later date in “Bart’s Style” with the “great outdoors” and fishing included. There will be a later notification of the service.

Emerson Lee

Emerson Harold Lee, 84, of Madison, Indiana, died Tuesday, March 19, 2019, at Norton Hospital. Arrangements will be announced by the Morgan & Nay Funeral Centre, in Madison, Indiana.

L.G. Stangle

L. G. Stangle, 92, of Lexington, Indiana, died Monday, March 18, 2019, at Scott Memorial Hospital.

He was born June 19, 1926, in New Castle, Kentucky, to Joe Stangle and Ruth Moore Stangle. He was a retired long-shoreman for the L.I.A. Union. In addition, he retired from the U.S. Coast Guard after serving during the Korean and Vietnam wars. He was also a U.S. Army veteran of World War II and a member of Lexington Christian Church.

He is survived by his companion, Janice M. Capps of Lexington; three sons, John Stangle of Scottsburg, Indiana, David Stangle of East Stroudsburg, Pennsylvania, and Lee Stangle of Fort Ann, New York; two daughters, Ruth Ann Smith and Lorraine Cromey, both of Tyler, Texas; two stepsons, James J. Capps of North Vernon, Indiana, and William A. Capps of Seymour, Indiana; one stepdaughter, Alida Kriete of Seymour; two brothers, Wayne Douglas Stangle of Phoenix, Arizona, and Robert Earnest Stangle of Turners Station, Kentucky; four sisters, Geneva Looney and Shirley Rayburn, both of Bedford, Kentucky, DeEtta Sanders of Covington, Kentucky, and Linda Ruth Proctor of Carrollton, Kentucky; nine grandchildren; and several great-grandchildren.

He was preceded in death by his wife, Alice Stangle, who died in 1979; one sister, Lorraina Kuhlman; and four brothers, Carroll, Dalton, Hurley and Kenneth Stangle.

Funeral services will be at 11 a.m. Friday at Collins Funeral Home in Scottsburg. Burial will follow in Lexington Cemetery in Lexington.

The sales benefit the Friends of the Library and the library children’s department. (Courier staff photo Trenton Scroggins/tscroggins@madisoncourier.com)

Kentucky gov signs abortion bill already facing a lawsuit

FRANKFORT, Kentucky (AP) — Gov. Matt Bevin on Tuesday signed into law an anti-abortion measure already entangled in a federal lawsuit, instructing his lawyers to fight the legal challenge against the new restrictions on the procedure.

Days before Bevin put his signature on the legislation, the American Civil Liberties Union filed its challenge in anticipation he would do so. The new law bans abortion for women seeking to end their pregnancies because of the gender, race or disability of the fetus.

The measure took effect upon Bevin’s signature, and his lawyers filed a response to the lawsuit aimed at blocking it. Kentucky lawmakers and GOP-led legislatures in several other states have pushed anti-abortion measures in hopes of getting a case before the U.S. Supreme Court to challenge the court’s landmark 1973 Roe v. Wade ruling that legalized abortion nationwide.

In asking a judge to block the new Kentucky law, the ACLU argued that it removes a woman’s right to an abortion if the state “disapproves of her reason” for the procedure. The suit was filed on behalf of EMW Women’s Surgical Center in Louisville, the only abortion clinic in Kentucky.

In reply, Bevin’s legal team said: “EMW and its abortionists have responded with a novel claim: Women have a constitutional right to undergo race-based abortions, gender-based abortions, and disability-based abortions. In (the) plaintiffs’ view, somewhere in the Fourteenth Amendment’s penumbra lies a secret protection of eugenics.”

Bevin’s lawyers called it a “perverse distortion” of the Roe v. Wade decision.

The measure’s supporters have said it would ban discrimination against fetuses because of race, gender or disability. Republican Rep. Melinda Gibbons Prunty, the bill’s lead sponsor, has said abortions in such cases are “reminiscent of the social evil of eugenics,” a belief that the human race can be improved through controlled breeding.

The new Kentucky law would require doctors performing abortions to certify in writing that, to their knowledge, their patient did not want to end her pregnancy because of concern over her unborn child’s sex, race, color, national origin or disability. Doctors violating the measure would face felony prosecution and the loss of their medical license. Any clinic where a violation occurred would lose its license. Pregnant women would not face penalties.

The ACLU’s challenge is part of a broader lawsuit also challenging another new Kentucky law that would mostly ban abortions in the state once a fetal heartbeat is detected.

Soon after Bevin signed the heartbeat measure, a federal judge issued a temporary restraining order late last week to block its enforcement.

Kentucky limits secretary of state power over election board

FRANKFORT, Kentucky (AP) — Legislation removing the secretary of state’s power over the State Board of Elections was signed into law Tuesday by Kentucky Gov. Matt Bevin — on the same day the board met.

Secretary of State Alison Lundergan Grimes did not attend the meeting at the state Capitol. The seat at the center of the table where Grimes customarily sat was empty.

But Grimes, one of the state’s most prominent Democrats, indicated later that she might have plenty more to say — perhaps in court — about the new law enacted by the state’s Republican-dominated legislature and signed by the GOP governor.

The measure carried an emergency clause allowing it to take effect immediately upon the governor’s signature. It removes the secretary of state as chairman and a voting member of the elections board. The secretary of state becomes a nonvoting member. The board’s executive director would have voting authority only to break a tie to determine the board’s chairman.

The law also limits access by the secretary of state’s office to a database of registered voters. It makes it a misdemeanor for anyone to misuse the state’s voter registration system.

The secretary of state and two designees will be given access to the database under the law, but they could not make changes to it without approval from the elections board.

The measure came after two employees at the State Board of Elections accused Grimes of wielding excessive power over the board and using her access to the voter database for political purposes. Grimes denies the allegations, saying her office followed the law “at all times.” Grimes is under investigation by three state agencies.

Walks cost Trimble in 12-1 loss in opener

By DAVID CAMPBELL
Courier Staff Writer
dcampbell@madisoncourier.com

Henry County managed just seven hits — and struck out 14 times — but the Wildcats took advantage of 10 Trimble County walks to pull away for a 12-1, six-inning win in baseball on Tuesday to ruin the Raiders' season opener.

The Wildcats scored five runs on three hits and three free passes in the first inning alone for all of the runs they would need to spoil Brent Turner's debut as Trimble County head coach.

"We did good. As we just told the boys, take away that first inning when we were knocking off the rust, it's a different ballgame," Turner said. "We're still ironing out some things. We did a lot of learning today and hopefully we'll come back on Thursday and make up for what we've learned."

Trimble County starter Matt Saylor struck out six in three innings on the hill, but it was the walks that hurt the junior's performance.

Saylor walked three of the first four batters he faced — sandwiched around a strikeout — and gave up an infield single and back-to-back hits to allow Henry County to jump out to the quick 5-0 lead.

Saylor settled down after that, although the walks still haunted him. A free pass to Ryan Archer turned into a run after Tyler Boyer laced a triple in the second inning and two more walks in the third both scored as Henry pushed three more across to build a 9-0 lead.

Other than the walks, Saylor was effective. The junior right-hander gave up only three hits during his stint on the mound and Seth Brewer, a junior left-hander, followed with two-plus innings in relief where he allowed just one run on two hits with six strikeouts and no walks.

While the pitching struggled at times, Trimble's bats were for the most part silent. Archer struck out eight and walked two while tossing four hitless innings for Henry County and relievers Joseph Williams and Woods followed with two innings where each struck out two.

Trimble County finally broke the shutout — and got its first hit of the game — in the fifth when Logan Clifford reached on a leadoff error and eventually made his way to third on a passed ball. Dalton Penick then plated him with a sharp single to center.

Henry County (2-0) then took advantage of more Trimble control issues in the sixth — where Evan Stevens walked four batters — to score three more runs and end the game on the mercy rule.

Boyer, Will Peyton and Dannie Foree each went 2-for-3 with two runs scored to lead Henry County while Woods, Palmer Coomes and Jackson Fischer each stole two bases, part of the 10 the Wildcats swiped in the game.

The game was the first in more than two decades without Frank Ragland in the dugout as the coach of the Raiders. The longtime coach and athletic director retired after last season, although he was on hand to watch the team play.

Turner said that he — and his coaching staff — were excited to get started.

"It's good and it's different. It's definitely different," Turner said, smiling. "We've got a good group of coaches and a good group of boys and I think we're starting a new program. We're starting a new era. Hopefully we'll get the balls rolling here soon. This was a good first game."

Panthers 0-2 after slugfest with Spencer, Conner rout

COURIER STAFF REPORT
sports@madisoncourier.com

Carroll County and Spencer County combined for 27 runs on just 15 hits in a baseball slugfest won by Spencer, 17-10, in Carrollton on Tuesday.

The Panthers (0-2) used a five-run second inning to jump out to a 6-1 lead but Spencer quickly came back. The Bears scored a run in the third, three in the fourth and eight in the fifth to open up a 13-8 lead.

Carroll County battled back with two runs in both the fourth and sixth innings, but Spencer scored two runs in both the sixth and seventh to pull away.

Dane Lacefield went 2-for-5 with two runs scored and an RBI to lead Carroll while Chris Perkinson had a double and an RBI. Zach Clifford had a hit, an RBI and scored twice, Logan Rodgers and Luke Staley each had a hit, an RBI and a run, and David Duncan had a hit and scored three times.

Cameron Siegle went 2-for-5 with a home run, three RBIs and two runs scored to lead Spencer (1-1). Patrick Kijinsky had a double and scored two runs, Jackson Cole was 2-for-4 with three runs scored and Caleb Greer had a hit and three RBIs for the Bears.

Craig Beach started on the hill for Carroll and allowed five runs — four earned — on three hits in three innings with three strikeouts and four walks. Jacob Polley took the loss after giving up three earned runs on one hit with two walks in an inning a third of relief. Six pitchers total saw action for the Panthers.

Cole picked up the win for Spencer after giving up four runs — three earned — on three hits with seven strikeouts in three innings of relief.

Carroll drops opener 11-3 to Conner in Jimmy Ray's return

Carroll County baseball opened its season and coach Jimmy Ray's second stint as the program's head coach with an 11-3 loss to Conner on Monday in Carrollton.

The Panthers and Cougars were tied 1-1 going into the top of the third inning when Conner pushed across six runs on a couple of walks, four hit batters — including three straight — and a three-run homer by senior Garrett Coghlan over the 310-foot sign in left field at Panther Field to take control of the game.

The Cougars (1-1), who would go on to lose 10-7 on Tuesday at Grant County, then led the rest of the way.

Carroll denied Coghlan a second big hit score later in the game when his drive to center field went through the legs of center fielder David Duncan and bounced to the fence in right-center field.

Running all the way, Coughlan tried to stretch what would have been a single and a two-base error into another roundtrip to home.

Coghlan was already on his way to third when Duncan finally caught up with the ball just in front of the 350-foot sign at Panther Field. Duncan relayed his cutoff throw to second baseman Andrew Shaw who made a running throw to catcher Logan Rogers who applied the tag about four feet short of the home plate.

Junior right-hander Zach Clifford took the loss for Carroll with Dane Lacefield pitching in relief.

Carroll hosts Grant County on Thursday.

Indiana openers next week

The high school baseball and softball seasons open in Indiana next week with Madison at North Harrison and Southwestern at South Central in baseball on Tuesday, March 26.

Madison will be the first softball team in action when the Cubs visit Greensburg on Wednesday, March 27.

Made for TV: Louisville vs. Minnesota hits Pitino intrigue

By DAVE CAMPBELL
AP Sports Writer

MINNEAPOLIS — Richard Pitino sat calmly in the middle of the room, his eager players flanking him and his restless children in front of him on the floor, as the teams with NCAA Tournament bids flashed on a big screen.

There went Louisville, an awfully familiar name.

Next came Minnesota, his current team.

Pitino simply smiled, fully and immediately aware of the extra intrigue created by the selection committee with this East Region matchup of No. 7 and 10 seeds to open play on Thursday in Des Moines, Iowa.

The madness of March has been built on all those low-major upsets and buzzer-beating swishes that bust up the office-pool brackets, but some of the must-see TV each year is arranged before the opening tip.

The Louisville-Minnesota game is one of those predetermined talkers, pitting Pitino and the Gophers against the storied program that fired his father, Rick Pitino, prior to the 2017-

18 season in response to the federal investigation into a nationwide college basketball bribery and corruption case. Richard Pitino served two stints as an assistant with the Cardinals under his dad, who has been coaching a professional team in Greece this season.

"Has he talked about Louisville the last two years? Yeah, he has, not in the most positive light," Pitino said. "It's not going to be about me. I'm not going to be, 'Oh, it's revenge,' or anything like that. It's about our players. It's about this program."

The Gophers will go to the NCAA Tournament for a second time in six seasons under Pitino.

New-look Reds try to break out of NL Central cellar

By JOE KAY
AP Sports Writer

CINCINNATI — During Yasiel Puig’s six seasons in LA, the Dodgers won at least 91 games and made the playoffs each year, reaching the World Series twice. The outfielder knows nothing but winning at the major league level.

Hello, Cincinnati.

An offseason trade transplanted Puig to the other side of the country and the standings. He’s now playing for a Reds team that’s lost at least 94 games for four straight years and has taken up full-time residency in the NL Central basement.

The weather is very different in Cincinnati. So is what passes for chili. The baseball? Puig will soon find out if that’s palatable, too.

“I’ve been with the Dodgers for six years, and six straight years we’ve been in the playoffs,” Puig said during a visit on a subzero winter day to look for a house. “I hope this is not a year we’re going to be out in October, you know? I come here to bring this team to the playoffs again.”

He’s got some reinforcements joining him. The question is whether they’ll be enough to make much of a difference.

The Reds are trying to morph from down-and-out rebuilders to overnight contender. They made three offseason deals, including one that brought Puig, Matt Kemp and left-hander Alex Wood from the Dodgers. They overhauled their rotation and their outfield in an attempt to become relevant again.

It’s an unusual strategy for a rebuilding team. Four of the players they acquired are eligible for free agency after next season, along with second baseman Scooter Gennett, their best hitter the last two years, so there’s no telling what comes next.

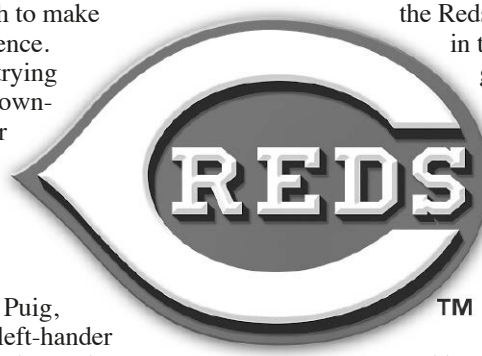

For now at least, the Reds are worth watching again.

“We’re going to do something better,” Puig promised.

Some things to watch as the Reds celebrate the 150-year anniversary of fielding the first professional baseball team and open the season at home against the Pirates:

FAMILIAR NAME AND NUMBER

First-year manager David Bell gives

the Reds a little nostalgia in the dugout. Bell’s grandfather, Gus, and father, Buddy, played for the Reds. He’s wearing their No. 25. Bell significantly changed the TM players’ routines in spring training, and he explored using reliever Michael Lorenzen in center field, another indication he’s open to new things. He’ll get a lot of the focus in his first season managing in the majors.

NEW FACES

The starting rotation has been the biggest problem the last few years, and it has a whole different look with the addition of Wood from the Dodgers, Sonny Gray from the Yankees and Tanner Roark from the Nationals. Often-injured Anthony DeSclafani and Luis Castillo are the holdovers. If the rotation can be merely above-average, the bullpen and the offense are good enough to get the Reds back to respectability in a tough division.

Former NL Most Valuable Player Joey Votto is coming off one of his worst seasons with only 12 homers, 67

RBIs and a .284 average. The Reds’ highest-paid player — he’s owed $25 million annually through 2023 — turns 36 in September. He said last season was “a bit of a shock,” and he worked on his swing in the offseason. A return to his norm would help the Reds’ offense significantly.

ROOKIE TO WATCH

Infielder Nick Senzel was taken second overall in the June 2018 amateur draft, Cincinnati’s highest pick since 1983. The Reds are trying to turn him into a center fielder who could fill Billy Hamilton’s role. How quickly he settles in at his new spot will be one of their more interesting subplots.

JULY

Gennett was interested in getting an extension over the offseason, but the Reds were taking more of a wait-and-see approach to how things turn out. Most of the players they acquired in offseason trades also are eligible for free agency after the season, which leaves the Reds in an interesting spot. What will they do when the trading deadline approaches in July? How much will their position in the standings dictate their financial decisions? It’ll be a very interesting month in Cincinnati.

BRIDGE

THE BEST DEALS HAVE TWO POINTERS

What is a pointer?

It might be a person or an arrow pointing in a particular direction or at a specific item. There is a breed of hunting dog that points at prey. Two stars in Ursa Major are called the pointers because they aim straight at the pole star.

A pointer can also be an instructive indicator, and the best bridge deals have two, one for declarer and one for the defenders. Today's is one of my favorites. What happens in five clubs after West leads a high heart?

In the auction, West might well have rebid two hearts despite the unfavorable vulnerability and all of those losers. North's two-heart cue-bid promised at least 12 high-card points. His three-heart cue asked his partner to bid three no-trump with a heart stopper. When South could not do that, North pushed into five clubs.

South has two top heart losers, so must play the trump suit safely.

Let's suppose West starts with his three top hearts. It should be easy for South to ruff, cash the club ace and run the club jack

New-look Reds try to break out of NL Central cellar

By JOE KAY
AP Sports Writer

CINCINNATI — During Yasiel Puig's six seasons in LA, the Dodgers won at least 91 games and made the playoffs each year, reaching the World Series twice. The outfielder knows nothing but winning at the major league level.

Hello, Cincinnati.

An offseason trade transplanted Puig to the other side of the country and the standings. He's now playing for a Reds team that's lost at least 94 games for four straight years and has taken up full-time residency in the NL Central basement.

The weather is very different in Cincinnati. So is what passes for chili. The baseball? Puig will soon find out if that's palatable, too.

"I've been with the Dodgers for six years, and six straight years we've been in the playoffs," Puig said during a visit on a subzero winter day to look for a house. "I hope this is not a year we're going to be out in October, you know? I come here to bring this team to the playoffs again."

He's got some reinforcements joining him. The question is whether they'll be enough to make much of a difference.

The Reds are trying to morph from down-and-out rebuilders to overnight contender. They made three offseason deals, including one that brought Puig, Matt Kemp and left-hander Alex Wood from the Dodgers. They overhauled their rotation and their outfield in an attempt to become relevant again.

It's an unusual strategy for a rebuilding team. Four of the players they acquired are eligible for free agency after next season, along with second baseman Scooter Gennett, their best hitter the last two years, so there's no telling what comes next.

For now at least, the Reds are worth watching again.

"We're going to do something better," Puig promised.

Some things to watch as the Reds celebrate the 150-year anniversary of fielding the first professional baseball team and open the season at home against the Pirates:

FAMILIAR NAME AND NUMBER

First-year manager David Bell gives the Reds a little nostalgia in the dugout. Bell's grandfather, Gus, and father, Buddy, played for the Reds. He's wearing their No. 25. Bell significantly changed the TM players' routines in spring training, and he explored using reliever Michael Lorenzen in center field, another indication he's open to new things. He'll get a lot of the focus in his first season managing in the majors.

NEW FACES

The starting rotation has been the biggest problem the last few years, and it has a whole different look with the addition of Wood from the Dodgers, Sonny Gray from the Yankees and Tanner Roark from the Nationals. Often-injured Anthony DeSclafani and Luis Castillo are the holdovers. If the rotation can be merely above-average, the bullpen and the offense are good enough to get the Reds back to respectability in a tough division.

Former NL Most Valuable Player Joey Votto is coming off one of his worst seasons with only 12 homers, 67

RBIs and a .284 average. The Reds' highest-paid player — he's owed $25 million annually through 2023 — turns 36 in September. He said last season was "a bit of a shock," and he worked on his swing in the offseason. A return to his norm would help the Reds' offense significantly.

ROOKIE TO WATCH

Infielder Nick Senzel was taken second overall in the June 2018 amateur draft, Cincinnati's highest pick since 1983. The Reds are trying to turn him into a center fielder who could fill Billy Hamilton's role. How quickly he settles in at his new spot will be one of their more interesting subplots.

JULY

Gennett was interested in getting an extension over the offseason, but the Reds were taking more of a wait-and-see approach to how things turn out. Most of the players they acquired in offseason trades also are eligible for free agency after the season, which leaves the Reds in an interesting spot. What will they do when the trading deadline approaches in July? How much will their position in the standings dictate their financial decisions? It'll be a very interesting month in Cincinnati.
